ASK FATHER SHAWN

Q: Since Catholics are not supposed to scatter ashes of a deceased loved one because the body is supposed to be kept together, what is the Church's teaching when it comes to relics since those are body parts that are separated from the body?

A: While the Catholic Church prefers burial of the body, the Church has allowed cremation since 1963. Ashes are not to be scattered, thrown away, or kept in a non-sacred place. The remains should be kept together and laid to rest in a sacred place. Usually, the resting place is marked with the person's name, highlighting the unique identity of the person. This practice relates to our faith in the Resurrection. We believe in life after death and that we will be reunited with our bodies at the general Resurrection. The idea of scattering ashes can overlap with non-Christian ideas that in death a person is reunited back to nature, liberated from the body, or reincarnated. Christian practices related to death and burial should reflect what we believe about the Resurrection. When it comes to relics, Catholics honor relics because the Lord often chooses to work miracles or to pour forth grace through the intercession of His saints. The use of relics does not give the impression that the deceased has been liberated from the body or is "returning to nature." To the contrary, the honoring of relics shows that the deceased is very much alive in the glory of Heaven. Relics honor the saint and affirm our beliefs in life after death and the sacredness of the body.

PRAYER OF THE WEEK

On this Independence Day, I am reminded of all those who have sacrificed for my freedom, following the example of Your Son, Jesus Christ. Let me not take my freedom, both physical and spiritual, for granted. May I always remember that my freedom was purchased with a very high price. My freedom cost others their very lives. Lord, today, bless those who have served and continue to give their lives for my freedom. With favor and bounty meet their needs and watch over their families. Help me to live my life in a way that glorifies You, Lord. Give me the strength to be a blessing in someone else's life today, and grant me the opportunity to lead others into the freedom that can be found in knowing Christ. Amen.
